

My time during the corona crisis
A bit has changed since the corona crisis. The students are no longer allowed to go to school which is a real shame. In the supermarkets the shelves are empty, especially those with toilet paper. I usually go out for fresh air every Saturday and Sunday but unfortunately that doesn't work anymore. I've been at home for 3 weeks without going out. When you have completed all the tasks it gets boring because you can't do anything except read your book for the 2nd or 3rd time. But the free time can also be a good thing because you can find a new hobby or draw something for seniors, for example I draw flowers for seniors and I think that these days are the best. I am also happy because I have more time for my guitar now. One of my bad days was, when I finished my travel diary because it was a very good activity. After that I've read the book I had chosen for German in my travel diary for the 2nd time. Every evening I had excitedly turned on the news to know when we could go back to school. I was very happy when Chancellor Angela Merkel said that the students could go back to school soon.
